E-Journal Fall 2009 Edition

This fifth edition is a mixed-grill of thematic essays on human rights, literature, shared governance in higher education and environmentalism. The KCKCC sustainability master plan proposal, if and when implemented, would likely become a pace setter in modern environmental engineering. The second essay addresses the conflict between the theories of shared-governance with emphasis on collegiality as opposed to the “authoritarian type.” Lovers of contemporary literature will no doubt enjoy the third article- “The Woman in the Wings.” The article, “Nicaragua and Iran: of U.S. and Clean Hands,” is an interesting, human rights perspective from a primary source. I hope you will enjoy these scholarly essays.
